This is the case when a careful consideration with regard to the consequences for the student(s) involved indicates that the change has an adverse effect on the student(s). A transitional arrangement will then be included in the Implementation Regulations of the Master CER RDD. 4. A minimum score S (Sufficient) and a weighting factor shall be determined for each test.
5. With regard to a course, the student will only be awarded credits in the event of special circumstances if both of the following conditions are met:
 - a. the mark for each test connected to a course is at least the minimum score determined for that test;
 - b. the weighted average of all grades of tests connected to a course is at least S (sufficient).
6. The Examination Board can determine that a test should be taken again by a different examiner, or by the examiner involved, or one or more other examiners.
7. A special condition may be included in the course description that the student has to meet when completing a course in order to be considered for credits as specified in paragraph 6 of this Article. Any condition of this nature may, although not exclusively, involve a certain degree of attendance during lessons or participation in a course assessment.
8. The examiner shall provide specific feedback to the student using each of the test assessments.
9. Based on an analysis of the examinations results, the examiner may decide later to amend the standardisation and/or caesura, after receiving approval from the Examination Board.
